

[illegible]

A GENEROUS FELLOW

By ELBERT T. BENTLEY.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

June, as everybody knows, is a delightful month. A young man was walking on a suburban road on a June morning. The heavens were blue, without a single fleecy dash. The air was dry and warm, an atmosphere that accords with the laws of meteorology and the occasional piping of a bird.

He stroved and looked about a most of roses. She uttered an exclamation of sudden fright.

[illegible]

"Where?" she said. "I—"

The girl said nothing. She was trying to regain her equanimity, instead of looking as if she had surprised a thief. She looked as if she had been surprised at finding something she was ashamed of.

"I am very fond of flowers," he added.

"I love flowers too."

"So I judge by the roses in your lap." "It was wrong to pick them, but I couldn't help it."

"Why wrong to pluck that to which I am so attached?"

She looked at him inquiringly. He was herself a trespasser. It occurred to her that he was the owner.

"Then I may keep them?"

He saw the question. His a thought had strumbled on a thorn which thought him the possessor of the place. Putting his head on his hand, he bowed

"All of them and more."
"He broke off a dozen and threw them in her lap."
"Oh, how kind of you!"
"I was just pretty and, dressed as she was to show white, formed a lovely contrast with the green background and the roses in her lap."
"If I were an artist," he said, "I would paint you as my subject."
"Won't you show me your place?" she asked.
"Certainly, but may I not sit for a few minutes in this extraordinary house?" she murmured and made room for him on the bench.
"I am fortunate," she said, "in finding one so pleasant with me, a stranger."
"Rather I welcome another chance to live in my garden."
A few quick steps crunching the gravel and a gentleman, of middle age, with a white hair and a strong nose, came to the pair in surprise. The man glanced at her companion, expecting him to excuse her presence to one whom she thought was another of the secretaries of the mission. He did not. He was hunting for a clergy, to cover the situation.

"This gentleman," she said to the secretaries, "has been so kind as to give me some more rum." "You are quite welcome to them," said he who was the real owner.

"I—I knew you would have done as much," replied she, and the man disappeared, coloring.

The owner took in the situation, at least enough of it to give him a hint. He frantically transferred his thoughts to the girl there and related to a temptress to give her the rum.

"Would you like to see my place?" he said.

The girl gave her companion treasurer a surprised look. "Why, I thought you lived here!"

The owner came to the rescue of a

"Oh, a friend?" said the girl.
"An esteemed friend," the owner put in.
"Come, we will walk through the place."
The girl gathered up her room, and they were led through the place, the owner selling their attention to this and that, by the way, or plant. "I think they had seen it all, but he had them in for a glass of wine and a biscuit. This offer was declined, and they were conducted to the gate.
"I am much of you lately, old man," said the host at parting.
"Are you going to desert to captivity?"
"I will be at home this evening,"
"We will be to see you,"
"I will call."
When they were alone the girl said,
"How nice it was that I was taught by my rich uncle man."
"I am glad you always depend upon one teacher. Any great of mine in that place is a great of my friend."

"Delighted! I see you good morning. Thank you very much for the roses."
"Don't mention it."
In the evening the trespasser called on the owner, not only a gentleman," he said: "You are a man and a brother."
"There is honor among thieves," replied the host, "and in such matters we must be all thieves. Will you take yours off or cover?"
"No, thank you."
"Then the guest told the story.

C. W. Weaver & Son C. W. Weaver & Son
The Leaders

First Lot of Ladies' New Tailored Suits Have Arrived
Others on the way

There is time now to choose a Suit at your leisure, from a full line of all the best styles—get a full month longer use for your Suit. Besides, if you contemplate a trip in the Early Fall, you can hardly get along without a Coat Suit or a Coat, besides why not go away well dressed? Young Ladies', Junior Misses', going away to boarding school, can be fitted and suited as well now as later, and at no more cost.

The greatest stock of LADIES' READY-TO-WEAR CLOTHING ANYWHERE outside of the cities, can be found with us.

Still quite a selection of Suits from this Season's make at 1-3 and 1-2 off regular price.

Big Run of Northern and South Papers Coming through Got-tury. Will Likely Spend a Night in this Place.

Liquidation Sale

Now Going On

On July 29 we started to dispose of $20,000.00

worth of up-to-date clothing for men, boys and children

This sale will positively continue until Saturday August 7

We will close out absolutely every piece of merchandise now on hand at far below wholesale cost. The gigantic values are almost unbelievable. Yet we pledge our word and

LEWIS E. KIRSSIN

Bicycles Repaired and For Sale
I have on hand about 10 bicycles ranging in price from $ to $35. Any kind of repair work done neatly and promptly.

L. R. Swope,
 125 West High Street. Gettysburg, Pa.

Executors Sale of Valuable Real Estate Public Sale
OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE
On Thursday, the 19th day of August, 1900, the undersigned executors of the

On Saturday, August 7th, 1909, the undersigned, Executors of the last Will of W. W. Hafer, deceased, late of Berwick Borough, Adams County Pa., will offer at public sale on the premises the following described real estate:

A tract of land known as the "John Regle Farm," on which Clinton Myers lives, situated in Reading Township, Adams County, Pa., on the road leading from the Hampton and East River Road to the York Springs road, close to the corner road, adjoining lands of C. H.

Kauffman, Alexander Spawght, J. H.
Hough, Lewis Dettmer and David Hoover located midway between Hampton and York Springs roads, about 10 miles

S.W. from York Springs, John Irvin, Edward Bois, Herbert Lagers, Thomas F. Baker, and Mrs. Edw. Plant, comprising acres more or less, of which 5 acres are or less is timber land. The improvement

7.130 Ham Berlin, containing 107 Acres and 97 percent, more or less, of which about 1.020 three acres are woodland. The improve-
(4) ments consist of a one and a half story
44 frame dwelling house with frame kitchen and bath, frame barn, frame outbuildings, and a large well. The farm is a good frame house, large back barn, well stocked, hog pen, chicken house, and outbuildings. This farm is a good producing farm and has a plentiful supply of water. Sale will commence at 11 a.m.

attached, large barn, barn, ring pen and other out-buildings. There are a number of good springs on the farm and water near the building.
Sale to commence at one o'clock P.
M. Twenty-five per cent. of pure and extra of W. W. Hafer, de

MARY G. BARK,
Guardian of J. Emory B.
Jas. M. Caldwell, Asst.

Emma W. Hark
Chas. S. Duncan, Executors.

Aug 2 to 7

The fresh doid soon after birth.

For sale by L. M. Mauchly or Cleve

Erma W. Haly
Chas. A. Duncan,
Executor

visiting for several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Frommery, has returned to his home in Laurens.
